

COMPLEXITY OF SELF-SILENCING IN “IN THE MOOD OF LOVE” (2000)

Presentation
for PHIL318

Su: It's late. Won't your wife complain?
Chow: She's used to it. She doesn't care. And your husband?
Su: He must be asleep by now.
Chow: Shall we stay out tonight?
Su: My husband would never say that.
Chow: What would he say?
Su: Anyhow, he wouldn't say that.
Chow: Someone must have made the first move. Who else could it be?

Unserious Context: roleplaying
Su: Chow's Wife
Chow: Su's Husband

Serious Context:
Su: Herself
Chow: Himself

Self-Silencing

has an originally intended speech act	✓
chooses against saying it	✓
perform another speech act instead	✓
speaker anticipated harm	✓
speaker has evidences for their belief	✓
consistent / nontrivial harm	✓

They intended to confess to each other, but the confession never happened. Instead, they only speak through their spouses' voices.

- Societal expectations, Negative stereotypes to people who cheat
- Self-guilt and punishment from their own value system